

You can enter up to five images, from one or more of the following categories.

- 1. Digital Images These are images that have been produced with the aid of a computer and can be submitted by email. Submitted images should be .jpg format for side-by-side parallel viewing. They can be any aspect ratio, but should not include any black borders. File size is limited to 6 Mbytes. Advice on correctly adjusting images can be found on the Society website by following the home page blue link 'Exhibitions/Competition' and then viewing Mike Hillyard's article. This section is divided into six subject headings marked u to z:
U- People, Pets, and Domestic Animals, v- Scenery, w- Buildings Inside and Out, x- Creative and Imaginative Images, y- Man Made Objects, z- Natural History.
- 2. Common Theme Images You have the choice of entering up to 4 digital images on a common theme, such as a feature of life today, a noteworthy event, or perhaps how something is achieved photographically. These images are judged together as a group and given a single mark based on how interesting the selectors found the entry and the quality of the images. They also count as a SINGLE IMAGE from the point of view of an entry, so you may submit FOUR further images for the competition in the digital or slide image sections. You are invited to write briefly on the chosen subject, relating this subject to the individual images. This will be sent to the selectors.
- 3. Slides These will be judged digitally. You have the option of sending the competition secretary slides by post and these will be converted to digital format, or submitting a digital version of former slides.

Conditions of entry

All members of the Stereoscopic Society are eligible to enter. Entry is free

Acknowledgement of a received entry and the results will be done by e-mail.

Entries submitted must be the work of the entrant. Entrants may not use the same images used in previous competitions, even if the format is changed. e.g. slides to a digital image. Any subject matter is acceptable, but judges will be looking for imaginative quality images which, in their opinion, are enhanced by being stereoscopic.

Because Covid persists it is recommended to send images by email, where possible.

It is assumed that the permission is given to reproduce accepted entries for non-commercial purposes associated with the Society, and the International Stereoscopic Union, unless the box on the entry form is ticked. This possibly could include an ISU CODE show, which will be put on YouTube. Copyright, however, remains with the photographer.

The competition will be judged by selectors receiving the digital entries independently and awarding marks. The marks will be sent to the Competition Secretary, who will then add the marks together and work out possible winners, runners up and commended images. The final judged results will be decided by an online meeting between the selectors. The accepted entries will be shown in a Zoom meeting and hopefully by digital projection shows at Coventry and London meetings, and a shortened version during the Annual Convention, assuming these take place.

To make the presentation show more interesting, you are invited to send brief notes covering points of interest, such as where and how the photographs were taken. Such material would not be presented to the selectors, but used for the shows only.

The 2022 panel of selectors are:

Stephen O'Neil
